

Stacy Huston

Stacy Huston is a renowned social impact expert and executive leader, celebrated for her contributions as a producer and keynote speaker. Stacy is the Executive Director of SixDegrees.Org, a charity founded by Actor and Philanthropist Kevin Bacon, and serves as the Executive Producer of his top-rated podcast, which inspires action through powerful storytelling. As CEO of Entertain Change, she spearheads a social impact agency dedicated to creating transformational solutions by collaborating with entertainers and organizations. Stacy's expertise and impact have been recognized internationally, with features in leading industry podcasts and publications. Honored with the Harry Chapin Humanitarian Award, she is a driven leader, committed to making a difference daily through strategic philanthropic efforts. Her notable collaborations include global projects with major entities like Peacock, Warner Bros, iHeartMedia, CBS, WhyHunger, MTV, NAACP LDF, and The ACLU. She is part of University of Redlands 2006 class and received her B.A. in Religious Studies. One of her fondest memories is being selected to participate in the TRAIN Leadership retreat her Freshman year. Stacy now lives just outside of Washington DC with her husband Danny and their two small children.